

12. A treaty table lies half buried in the earth. It is surrounded by four period typewriters; the sheets of paper spilling out of the machines are the treaties and agreements from the First and Second World Wars, and the Korean and Vietnam Wars. A computer monitor displays the statement "This is a Treaty between the Commonwealth of Australia and the Indigenous Peoples of Australia" the screen is blank. Around the walls are examples of the treaties between colonial governments and Indigenous peoples. Actor Jermaine Hampton is selecting possible fragments from these treaties to construct a similar document for Australia (20).
