   "service" includes the production, distribution and supply of goods.
3. (1) Where, in the opinion of the Governor, circumstances have arisen, or are likely to arise, that have caused, or are likely to cause, interruption or dislocation of essential services in the State, he may, by proclamation—

(a) declare a period (commencing on the date of the proclamation, or some specified later date, and extending for not more than seven days) to be a period of emergency for the purposes of this Act;

and

(b) declare that specified essential services are the essential services in respect of which the period of emergency applies.

(2) The Governor may, by proclamation—

(b) extend a period of emergency by such other period or periods as may be authorized by a resolution of both Houses of Parliament;

(c) vary a declaration under subsection (1) (b) by expanding or reducing the range of essential services to which the declaration applies; or

(d) revoke a proclamation under this section.

(3) Where a period of emergency expires, no subsequent period shall be declared to be a period of emergency unless—

(a) that subsequent period commences fourteen days or more after the expiration of the former period of emergency;

or

(b) the declaration is authorized by a resolution of both Houses of Parliament.

(ii) the terms of the direction are communicated to the person or persons to whom it is addressed by telegram or telex;

or

(iii) the terms of the direction are published in a manner determined by the Minister.

Penalty: Where the convicted person is a body corporate—ten thousand dollars; where the convicted person is a natural person—one thousand dollars.

(7) Where property has been requisitioned by the Minister under this section, the Minister, or an agent of the Minister, may take the property, exercising any necessary force in order to do so, and may use the property in the exercise of powers conferred by subsection (1).
