LEADING AUTHORITY ON INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY TO VISIT ADELAIDE

One of Europe's leading authorities on worker participation will visit Adelaide next month.

Mr. Pehr Gyllenhammar, President of A.B. Volvo, will come to Adelaide on October 23 as part of his Australian tour.

Announcing Mr. Gyllenhammar's visit the Premier, Mr. Dunstan, said the Volvo works in Sweden had pioneered new styles of work organisation and worker participation in management.

"Volvo have been adventurous and successful in their attempts to improve working conditions in car factories and other parts of their manufacturing organisation", the Premier said.

"They have made a major contribution to the world's knowledge of worker participation techniques".

Mr. Dunstan said Volvo had backed their philosophy with millions of dollars by producing new factory designs, of which their plant at Kalmar was the most recent example.

At the Kalmar plant cars are manufactured without a traditional assembly line and groups of workers are able to vary their jobs and working pace to suit themselves.

When the Kalmar factory was being planned, Volvo said their objective was "to find a way to create a workplace which met the needs of the modern working man who had a sense of purpose and satisfaction about his daily work and to attain this goal without an adverse effect on productivity".

While he is in Adelaide Mr. Gyllenhammar, 41, will have talks with the Premier and will address a luncheon meeting of business and trade union leaders from the motor industry. He will be a guest speaker at a symposium on industrial democracy attended by people from all sections of industry.
