SACRED ABORIGINAL ARTEFACTS.

The Premier, Mr. Dunstan, today announced that the State Government had acted to acquire the eight Aboriginal tjuringas on behalf of the Aranda tribe.

The Government bid $6,000 for the sacred artefacts, of which $3,500 will be provided by the Aboriginal Arts Board of the Australia Council, $1,500 by the South Australian Government and $1,000 by the South Australian Brewing Company.

Mr. Dunstan said he was very pleased that the tjuringas had been saved, and that the sacred customs of the Aranda people would not be offended against.

"I am very grateful to the South Australian Brewing Company, which shared the Government's view that these irreplaceable objects should be returned to the Aboriginal people".
